Journal of Rock Mechanics and Geotechnical Engineering

Geoprofessions is a term coined by the Geoprofessional Business Association to connote various technical disciplines that involve engineering, earth and environmental services applied to below-ground (subsurface), ground-surface, and ground-surface-connected conditions, structures, or formations. The principal disciplines include, as major categories:

Engineering geology is the application of the geology to engineering study for the purpose of assuring that the geological factors regarding the location, design, construction, operation and maintenance of engineering works are recognized and accounted for. Engineering geologists provide geological and geotechnical recommendations, analysis, and design associated with human development and ...

The purpose of this paper is to review international practice in the rock mechanics and rock engineering design of rock anchors which, as will be shown, has remained largely unchanged since the 1970s.

The journal aims to encourage and enhance the role of mechanics and other disciplines as they relate to earthquake engineering by providing opportunities for the publication of the work of applied mathematicians, engineers and other applied scientists involved in solving problems closely related to the field of earthquake engineering and geotechnical earthquake engineering.
