Self-determination theory (SDT) is a macro theory of human motivation and personality that concerns people's inherent growth tendencies and innate psychological needs. It is concerned with the motivation behind choices people make without external influence and interference. SDT focuses on the degree to which an individual's behavior is self-motivated and self-determined.

Evolution is change in the heritable characteristics of biological populations over successive generations. These characteristics are the expressions of genes that are passed on from parent to offspring during reproduction. Different characteristics tend to exist within any given population as a result of mutation, genetic recombination and other sources of genetic variation.

Ancient philosophical theories of soul are in many respects sensitive to ways of speaking and thinking about the soul [psuchã] that are not specifically philosophical or theoretical. We therefore begin with what the word "soul" meant to speakers of Classical Greek, and what it would have been natural to think about and associate with the soul.
